

A photograph of the interior of The Editory Riverside Hotel. The scene features a modern bar with a curved, illuminated ceiling. In the foreground, there is a brown leather Chesterfield-style sofa with two patterned cushions and a low white coffee table holding a small vase of dried flowers and a dark bowl. The bar area is filled with various bottles and glasses, and several pendant lights hang from the ceiling. The background shows a dining area with more tables and chairs.

Embark on a journey through history, marked by the rhythm of departures and arrivals, drawn in lines that extend to so many other points on the map.

The Editory Riverside is the gateway to a wharf of experiences that get lost between the skyline seen through the window and the paths that converge in one place with so many languages and accents mixed.

HISTORY, CONTEMPORARY AND CULTURE.

Lisbon is a historical city, an authentic capital, where old habits and century-old history intersect with cultural animation and technological innovation. Where the sun shines 290 days in the year and temperatures seldom drop below 15 °C.

LOCALIZATION

The Editory Riverside Hotel is located at Stª Apolónia train station, one of the oldest train stations in Portugal. A crossing point for millions of people every year. A iconic place in city center where you can travel to any location, whether by train, subway, bus, taxi or even by boat.
